Anna Thompson
Project Architect
apt@milbrandtarch.com

Anna joined Milbrandt Architects in 2008. In practice with Milbrandt Architects, she is well versed in numerous 3D modeling and rendering platforms in addition to traditional drafting methods. During her time here she has run several large-scale residential projects, a number of which involved working within master planned communities. Skilled in negotiating creative solutions to complex design issues, Anna consistently delivers projects on time and within budget.

Anna received both her Master of Architecture and Bachelor of Science in Environmental Design degrees from North Dakota State University and has been a licensed Architect in Washington since 2014.

Milbrandt Architects was founded in 1982 and since then have been involved in hundreds of successfully completed projects. We approach all projects upon this solid foundation of experience and worked closely with a small staff to remain personally involved in every phase of every project. Our portfolio varies greatly in size and type, but the underlying motivation is the synergy of user needs, aesthetics, and economic parameters.

While aesthetic appeal is important to a project's identity, our approach is holistic and insists on vigorous collaboration with consultants and agencies, as well as unrestricted client involvement. The result: a more intelligent, sustainable project; one that meets established economic and market goals, and whose occupants are both well served and inspired!

HighPoint West Seattle, WA

In Partnership with the Seattle Housing Authority and a prominent local developer, funding for the High Point project was through a HOPE VI redevelopment grant. To fulfill the demanding program, 96 for-sale condominiums in two building types were designed to fit this challenging site in West Seattle. Large porches and views of downtown Seattle are just some of the perks at High Point.
